Fund Investment Approach

The Fund is model driven, utilizing a primarily volatility trend-following model. In periods of relatively low equity market volatility, the model's exposure to volatility has tended to decrease (with a corresponding increase in the model's exposure to stocks). In periods of relatively high equity market volatility, the model's exposure to volatility has tended to increase. This approach is intended to capture large uptrends in volatility assets while preserving positive performance during extended bull markets with low volatility. In order to meet its investment objective, the Fund may invest in derivative instruments, such as futures contracts, that provide exposure to equity securities, including volatility in the equity markets.
